

 Print this article

November 25, 2009

London Asset Manager Appoints Head For New Advisory Service

Ilya Timofeyev

Delmore, the UK-based asset management firm, has appointed Peter Stanyer as head of its newly created private wealth strategic advisory service.

Delmore Strategic Advisers will be jointly headed by Mr Stanyer and Howard Goldring, the firm's chairman and founder, Delmore said in a statement.

Mr Stanyer, who has worked closely with the Delmore since 2003, is now also the firm's economist and strategist. His earlier career includes having been managing director of Merrill Lynch's private banking division, head of the portfolio risk and client advisory service for Merrill's European fund management business, and a similar position at Mercury Asset Management.

Delmore Strategic Advisers will offer strategic and tactical investment along with with risk management to family offices and private investors.